

Guess who pays the price

for cable service theft?

Whenever your neighbors steal cable services such as cable TV, pay-per-view or Internet service, you pay the price.

Unauthorized cable TV connections can lower the picture quality on your TV.

Unauthorized Internet usage can slow the speed of your broadband connection.

Your cable bill may increase to cover the costs incurred to repair network damages caused by thieves.

Cable thieves can endanger the life of your loved ones as illegal tampering with cable lines can interfere with emergency service radio transmissions.

In addition, cable thieves take money away from important community programs such as schools, firefighters, police and parks. Our cable company pays the community a franchise fee for each paying customer, so our community loses revenue every time someone steals cable service.
